MILWAUKEE - Herzing University, an accredited, private nonprofit institution, announced the U.S. News & World Report has again ranked Herzing University's online learning programs among the best in the nation. It is the 13th consecutive year that Herzing has received such honors.

Herzing was recognized by U.S. News 2025 Best Online Programs rankings for its online Bachelor's programs, online MBA programs, and online Master's in Nursing programs. Additionally, both Herzing's online Bachelor's and online Master's in Nursing programs were also recognized as top online degree programs for veterans.

"Herzing University is honored to be recognized once again by U.S. News & World Report for the excellence of our online programs," said Jeff Cross, President of Herzing University Online. "We firmly believe that online education is a vital component of modern higher learning, and as we celebrate 60 years of educational excellence, this recognition further strengthens our resolve to deliver accessible, high-quality education to students across the country, around the world, and to those who have served or are currently serving in the military."

With decades of experience in delivering online education, Herzing University has developed innovative, career-focused programs designed to meet the needs of today's students. The university offers flexible scheduling and a personalized approach that empowers students to balance their studies with work, family and other commitments. Herzing also provides a robust suite of virtual support services to ensure students succeed from enrollment to graduation. These resources include 24/7 access to an online library and tutoring services, tech support, mental health resources and dedicated academic advisors who guide students every step of the way.

Designed for individuals looking to complete or further their education, this year's edition of the rankings evaluated more than 1,800 online bachelor's and master's degree programs.

The Best Online Programs rankings include bachelor's programs, as well as MBA and graduate nursing programs, with Herzing's online bachelor's and graduate nursing programs also ranked among the best for veterans. While the methodologies are different for each discipline, they all incorporate metrics specific to online learning. The rankings only include degree-granting programs that are offered primarily online by regionally accredited institutions.
