Rep. Sequanna Taylor Condemns Budget Cuts That Strip Critical Funding from Wisconsin Education

Milwaukee, Wis – Today, Representative Sequanna Taylor (D–Milwaukee) released the following statement in response:

“This budget is being sold as a win for education, but the truth is it leaves our public schools behind. Without an increase in general school aid, districts across Wisconsin—especially those serving low-income and underserved communities—will be forced to raise property taxes or make devastating cuts to staff, programs, and services. That’s not equity, that’s abandonment.

“Every child deserves access to a fully funded classroom, regardless of their zip code. The lack of basic school aid increases creates a growing divide between wealthy and working-class districts, and it’s our students who pay the price. This is not the kind of future we should be handing to the next generation.”
